

I fail to understand why there is another review of CPC when this Crown Corporation has been turning in profits, paying taxes and dividends to the federal government for over 12 years. This review is highly suspect especially when you consider that the result of the last review was CPC being ordered to abandon part of its admail business to its competitors. Thousands of workers at decent wages were laid off in favour of lower paid jobs in the private sector. This review is simply political interference on behalf of big business.
