

Dear Sir/Madam

As a Canada Post employee for the past twenty one years and a Canadian, what gives? Canada Post has and still is one of the biggest money makers for the Government of Canada. Sure there are things that need to be done within Canada Post to keep it competing with other agencies, examples are upgrading equipment and going for more infrastructure within Canada and around the world. Opening up Canada to other agencies will and you know it, jack up all prices, lose of jobs (good paying jobs), no service for rural Canada after a few years and ruin what Canada and Canada Post stands for. If you feel you want to be part of this, go ahead and ruin what we stand for, FREEDOM. Not being taken for a ride by a US company or some other country, that could not care one tiny bit about Canada and its people, only the almighty dollar and their profit line.

Daniel B. McCormick
Nova Scotia