

The government has given the CPCS R a very broad mandate. It has ruled out privatization, but not deregulation of Canada Post.

Even though the government's strategic review could change the very nature of our postal system, there are no plans for public hearings. The review's advisory panel is simply consulting with "major stakeholders". It is asking the public and groups to provide written submissions by September 2, 2008. It will report to the government by December 2008. A speedy review without public hearings is hardly a democratic way to decide the fate of our publicly-owned post office

HEY HARPER HANDS OFF MY POST OFFICE
SAY NO TO POSTAL DEREGULATION!!!
